Do you fancy yourself an adventurer? Do you dream of being able to go off and tour a remote location, climb an extreme mountain or try something new? Do you get excited when you think about pushing your limits and expanding horizons? If so, why are you only going on tiresome vacations? Why are you setting yourself up for vacation boredom? Why not try something active? No matter what kind of activity you enjoy or what boundary you want to push there are adventure travels out there just waiting for you to book them? Below are some choices for people who get bored of always taking the same type of vacation.

If you like being in the great outdoors and attempting to survival skills by living off the land, why not go on an Australian Walkabout? These have gained popularity since one of the main characters from the television show Lost attempted to go on one. The idea behind an Australian Walkabout is that you and your fellow adventurers head out into the Australian Outback with a guide. When you are participating on a walkabout, you completely live off the land. You search for your own food, construct your own shelf from the items you can find outside and take on any “elements” that could come your way (weather, animals, etc). It is kind of like extreme camping and can be incredibly fulfilling.

Shark Diving is not for the faint of heart but it is incredibly exciting. The Shark Diver Company has package deals for adventurers that will allow them to shark dive in Mexico or California. You should know, though, that these types of adventure travels are very expensive. A single person can usually spend around three thousand dollars for the trip. These vacations are typically at least five days in length. You will need to be certified in diving before you go on a trip like this. You don't want to spend your whole vacation stuck on the boat!

Have you ever thought about taking a deep sea fishing trip? Most people don't associate fishing with adventure travels. However, when you are in the middle of the gigantic blue ocean fishing is a different sport. Besides wrangling typically larger fish, you are also dealing with the ocean elements. Possibilities are endless when you're out at sea. The type of deep sea fish that you want to catch will help you pick your destination. However, if you would rather, you can also choose your target location by the climate and “home base” scenery. A very trendy deep sea fishing spot is Hawaii. “Adventure travels” can be defined in so many different ways. For some people it includes crazy adventures, like hiking the highest mountains in the world or experiencing extreme climate conditions. For some, it involves challenging situations they are not used to in their normal, everyday life – such as cattle driving and hiking in different lands, etc. Still for other individuals, adventure travels revolve around learning new things while still having a stress-free time. To summarize: it doesn't matter what kind of interests you have, you should be able to find an adventure vacation meant for you!
