The European Stag

Stag parties have always been a symbol of leaving bachelorhood and entering married life. Formerly, this included several friends getting together in a bar or someone's apartment and possibly ending the evening at a strip club. This celebration ritual soon became dull in the minds of the party-goers. One night events began to quickly evolve into weekend getaways relative to mini-holidays. The bachelor and his friends travel to different parts of the world and take part in a variety of activities including the anticipated night on the town.

A favorite destination for stag weekends is the European continent. People find this destination relaxing and exotic. This short holiday may seem far away, but is easily accessible and has a much different atmosphere from Britain. According to your likes, there are many destinations to enjoy. Tallinn, Warsaw, Prague, Barcelona, and Ireland all offer exciting weekend ideas that everyone can enjoy. Each specializes in their tantalizing foods, original ales, folklore, and tourist attractions. Of course, there are also the night spots that never seem to close.

When planning your stag weekend, do not become frustrated attempting to fill every minute of an enjoyable trip. Hassles of booking flights and finding hotel rooms soon drain the fun out of an otherwise eventful plan. Look into one of the numerous travel companies available in Europe. These businesses specialize in preparing all travel, accommodations, and event planning according to your plans for a fun weekend. They will customize a mini-holiday according to the stag's preferences and insure the entire group has an enjoyable time.

Theme trips are increasing in popularity for stag weekends. Itineraries may include sports packages, city tours, hovercraft racing, golf, go-karting, and white water rafting. Reservations are made ahead of time according to taste requests by the party and may include entertainment for the bachelor. The nightlife never stops in Europe and a guide can come along to insure you visit the most popular hot spots. Flights are arranged with shuttle service to any of your chosen destinations.
