You can travel virtually anywhere in the United States and Canada on Alaska Airlines. While they offer a larger number of flights to West Coast destinations, as well as (obviously) Alaska, the fact is, you can begin your trip from locations such as Newark, NJ (close to NY), Boston or Chicago. It is because of its widespread destination of routes that it is the airline you should use. So while you can certainly use this airline to get from one location in Alaska to another, or up and down the West Coast, it's far more than just a regional airline. For those of you that travel with your pets, using Alaska Airlines should be your first choice because they are one of the most pet-friendly of all airlines. For people that will not go on a trip without their animal companions, this is a large issue. If you go on a trip with your animal, make sure that you have all of the documentation that you will need to show the airline to prove it is properly vaccinated. If you are traveling with your animal, it must be in a proper container before it can be allowed be with you on the flight. You can also place your animal in the climate controlled baggage compartment of the plane. Bringing your animal with you and having it close is definitely possible with Alaska Airlines.

Current information about Alaska Airlines and Horizon Air, it's sister airline, can be found on various social media sites. Not only can you follow what they do on Twitter, you can "fan" them on their Facebook Fan Page.

This will give you early access to any special offers and promotions, and will also alert you to any delays or other news of interest to fliers. Alaskan wilderness adventure tours
